Volunteer Fire Department--Its Staff, Its History, How it Works.

by James Giese

The Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad (GVFD&RS) will begin its annual fund drive in mid-May. The fund drive is the major source of non-tax monies used to help finance the department's operations and maintain its equipment. The drive is particularly important this year because county funding of the volunteer fire companies is expected to drop by 7%.

Unlike its richer neighbors, Greenbelt does not run casino gambling nights and lacks this source of revenue. (It is prohibited from doing so under its lease for use of the city-owned fire station building.)

The GVFD&RS does not participate in telephone solicitations, and anyone so solicited on behalf of the department should notify the department. The annual fund drive is the principal fund raiser of the department. It also earns funds from renting its banquet hall for weddings and other events. The Ladies Auxillary raises funds with a door-to-door solicitation in the fall for taking portraits for use as Christmas gifts. The auxillary supports the fire company in a variety of ways.

GVFD&RS is a part of the county fire service and is not part of the city government. As such it receives operating funds from the county and the station is staffed by three paid staff members during daytime hours, Monday through Friday. At other times the department depends solely upon volunteers. County volunteers handled 90% of all fire and rescue incidents, at no labor cost to taxpayers.

County operating funds have never fully paid for the department's costs, and the department has relied upon fund drives and other fundraisers to make up the difference. In recent years, as county budgets have become tighter, the needs of the department have become more acute. Of particular concern is the maintenance of the fire station.

Fund Needs

Although the county assumed maintenance responsibilities, the building has suffered from 10 years of neglect, according to company president Jay Remenick. A persistent problem with roof leaks was finally satisfactorily corrected by the county only recently. The department has completed rehabilitating its banquet hall at a cost of $12,000. Restoring its appearance was needed to assure that it continued to be a source of revenues to support the department's operations.

Rehabilitation of the remainder of the station still needs to be done. Remenick estimates that it will take $100,000 to $150,000 to fully rehab the entire station and grounds. New ceiling tile is on order to replace that damaged by the roof leaks. The volunteers will do the installation work.

The department has received delivery of a new pumper truck that is now receiving final preparation before being placed in service. The county has agreed to pay $160,000 toward the cost of the truck, nearly half of the total cost. Under the

by Virginia Beauchamp

The news that the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum will receive a grant from the Maryland Humanities Council makes certain that one local project for the Prince Georges County Tricentennial will come about. That is their plan for a special photographic exhibit, "Images and Voices of Greenbelt", to be held in October, 1996, the anniversary year. Greenbelt is also participating in another exhibit featuring photographs from the county's municipalities, for which Betty Allen is the city's liaison.

These projects, however are only the beginning of what is currently in the works for 1996. In fact, "exciting" was the key word at a recent meeting of the Tricentennial Celebration Committee, involving citizens from all over the county, as the newly appointed chair, Tim Maloney, went through a list of project proposals and works in progress.

Starting as early as this summer, a Tricentennial commemorative automobile license plate will be put on sale to the public at large. If the 9,999 tags that the committee hopes will be sold start appearing on area cars, no one will be able to avoid knowing that a celebration lies just ahead.

Ready for distribution at any moment is also a Tricentennial cookbook some 300 recipes from all of the county's diverse ethnic groups.

Television gets into the act in publicizing the year-long event in the form of a ten-minute video, to be made available to area schools and civic organizations. But television will also provide a major record of the county's history, as Maryland Public Television produces a 60- to 90-minute documentary. This will be aired on public television channels and made available for classroom use.

Memorial Day Observance

Greenbelt Post 136 of the American Legion invites the veterans, and citizens, of Greenbelt to participate in their Annual Memorial Observance on Tuesday, May 30 at 10 a.m. The ceremony, to be held at the Greenbelt War Memorial, Centerway, will give special thanks and recognition to the veterans of World War II. A presentation of colors, patriotic music and laying of wreaths are planned to remember the events and sacrifices of 50 years ago. Participants are welcome to attend the buffet that follows at the Post Home.

In the event of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held at the Post Home on Greenbelt Rd. For more information call 345-0138.

Greenbelters to Celebrate 58th Greenbelt Day

On Sunday, June 4, Greenbelt will mark the 58th anniversary of its incorporation as a municipality. As in past years, the weekend including that date, Greenbelt Day, will be dedicated to commemorating that history.

Weekend highlights include a family moonlight swim at the Aquatic and Fitness Center, a moonlight concert at the outdoor swimming pool by the Sam Turner Ensemble, and Family Day on Sunday at Greenbelt American Legion Post #136. Other events include Little League contests, a tennis tournament, a flea market by the Golden Age Club and a benefit car wash for the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad. (See ad for complete schedule.)

Starting at 1 p.m. on Sunday, Family Day, the Legion will host a variety of activities. As usual, food and drink will be offered for sale. The first event will be a variety show, featuring a number of young entertainers. At 1:45 Mayor Antoinette Bram and other members of the Greenbelt City Council will participate in the special Greenbelt Day program, at which in particular they will honor John Del Homme, the former conductor of the Greenbelt Concert Band.

The band itself, under the direction of Tom Cherrix, will offer a program at 2:05, including a special musical tribute to Del Homme. Other musical offerings in the afternoon will be provided by Bob Devlin's One Man Band.

Besides these events, children's games, a moon bounce, face painting, clowns and balloons will be on site to entertain the children. A horse shoe tournament, a dart tournament and bingo are also planned.

Events are free at Family Day, which is co-sponsored by the Greenbelt Legion post and by the Greenbelt Recreation Department. Those attending are encouraged, however, to bring their own blankets or lawn chairs for seating. All proceeds from the day's activities will benefit the Greenbelt Community Center and the Grad Night festivities for Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

Council Approves a $12.8 Million Budget; Hikes Tax Rate 3 Cents

by Diane Oberg

The new community center, the city's first bicycle police officer, a one dollar rise in monthly refuse fees and a three cent increase in the property tax rate are the high-lights of the $12.8 million dollar budget approved by the Greenbelt City Council on May 22. A transfer of $165,700 from reserves was required to cover the excess of expenditures over revenues. The budget covers fiscal year 1996 (FY96), which begins July 1.

Expenditures

The details of the budget were hammered out at a council work session on May 17. The councilmembers easily agreed to restore the $52,900 contribution to the fire department that City Manager Daniel Hobbs has recommended discontinuing. They also reached an easy consensus to add the matching funds necessary to qualify for a federal grant for an additional police officer to establish a bike patrol.

Construction delays at the community center led to an easy spending cut. By delaying the opening from July to September, council saved a quick $30,000. However, cynics hoping to solve the budget crunch with further delays should be aware that after September, delays save relatively little money since rental revenues would also be reduced, and utility costs must be paid.

Also added was a city-contracted recycling program, which is expected to be completely self-supporting. These decisions along with a health insurance premium that came in $50,000 less than budgeted brought total expenditures to $12,659,500.

The budget does not provide for any cost of living adjustment for city employees although increases based upon service time and performance are funded. City Manager Daniel Hobbs was granted a three percent performance pay increase by council.

Revenues

Most of the news on the revenue side of the budget was bad. County "rebates" for landfill usage and code enforcement duties were reduced by $110,300 and county funding for Greenbelt CARES was down $4,500

Letters to the Editor

To City Council, Greenbelt's Loss City Residents:

At one time, being a City employee was considered a noble, honorable calling. Today many of the Public Works employees feel battered and beleaguered. People at Public Works are busting their butts, working harder than ever, and yet we are viewed as part of the problem, not part of the solution.

Public Works bashing is hardly a new sport; however, it is being played with unparalleled enthusiasm these days. This year's proposed budget is seen as the most devastating, unbridled manifestation of the hostility that many Public Works employees believe is directed toward them. The prime example of this is the removal of office staff from Public Works to staff the new Community Center. For continuity of service to the citizens we need a full time staff person in our office.

The current administration already has taken bites out of our department with its "How can we do better plan," which proposes nothing but more cuts, more work, and less help. This year in the crusade to balance the budget, we are again being looked at for cuts in personnel, and more maintenance with less funding. We believe that the Department cannot absorb the heavily expanded responsibility without an increase in funding and personnel.

It is not a happy time to be an employee at Public Works. Many department employees are building their careers in City government, giving up higher paying private sector jobs in exchange for job security. However, under the current administration policies, we have seen this security threatened. It appears there is a long-range unwritten plan to downsize the department and go with temps and private contractors. We do not believe this is in the long term interest of the City. To many Department employees, the loss of respect is much more troubling than the loss of security.

We have tried to tune out the negative stereotyping of the do-nothing, know-nothing, useless Public Works employees. Currently we have been undergoing a space study by Greenman-Pederson. Preliminary results have supported our constant reports of severe overcrowding and sub-standard facilities. We don't need to spend unbudgeted funds on consultants, when we are aware of our needs and fully capable of explaining them to Council, if we are given the chance. Our lack of

It was a sunny afternoon last week when death came—suddenly and unexpectedly. A lovely young tree, green from a glorious spring, reaching out with vigorous new growth, sure in its chosen spot, was maliciously killed.

The quick snap broke the slender trunk, the conduit of its nurturing plasma. This once-living tree will now not ever be a part of the rhythm of nature, of growth and change as the seasons change from winter's sleep to summer's full regalia. A human hand did this deed.

Greenbelters overall are proud of their canopy of trees and saddened by a loss to age or disease of the great old oaks, hollies and sweet gums that still shade us after nearly sixty years.

For an individual to carry out such an execution of a young tree, planted to replace old trees now gone and enhance a common area is incomprehensible to me. I mourn the loss of the tree.

Be that individual a child or an adult, male or female, something in that person's upbringing is sadly lacking: a respect for that green growing world in which we humans humbly co-exist.

Thanks

To the members of GHI who expressed your confidence in me by electing me to the Board: Thank You! I will work hard to represent your best interests. Please let me know how I'm doing. Thanks also to the candidates; members are well served when offered a choice of qualified candidates as they were this year. opportunity to do so supports our feeling of mistrust of the department by the city manager.

Today we are concerned about the rhetoric that demeans the Public Works employees. To the city's highest officials, we ask that you consider carefully the importance of having first-rate employees and facilities. Do you really think private contractors and temps will provide the care and quality of service now provided?

We hope that the city manager will one day realize that the Public Works employees are not nameless, faceless servants, but people with feelings, families, and obligations. We are decent people doing hard jobs in tough times.

Signed by 33 Public Works Employees

Editor's Note: After this letter was submitted, Council deferred its decision on the proposal to move a staffer on the community center until the summer.

An Apology

I would like to apologize for being such a scofflaw for all the years I've been driving. You see, I had fallen into the bad habit of using my turn signals whenever I intended to turn or change lanes. I thought that, perhaps, other drivers didn't signal because they were too busy or forgot or maybe their cars are new models that don't have turn signals. But after seeing even police cars and ambulances fail to use their turn signals (during non-emergency conditions), I realized that there must be a local law making it illegal to use a turn signal, and that I had been breaking the law all these years! I apologize again for my ignorance, and promise to make an unsignaled turn for the better.

ERHS Registration

Students who reside in the Eleanor Roosevelt High School attendance area and currently attend private schools will be registered on Thursday, June 1, from 9:30 a.m. to noon in the Guidance Office at Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

In order to complete the registration process, a parent or legal court appointed guardian must accompany the student on the day of registration. Parents must provide the following documents at the time of registration: Proof of residence in the Eleanor Roosevelt attendance area. (bring one of the following items: check stub, tax bill, telephone bill-portion showing name and address, insurance premium notice, or BG&E or PEPCO bill); immunization record; birth certificate; last report card received; and a copy of student's test scores.

If the student is not a U.S. citizen and has not been enrolled in a PG public school, the parent must contact the International Student Guidance Office at 445-8460 prior to coming to Eleanor Roosevelt for registration.

Failure to produce all of the above documents will result in a delay in the registration process.

This registration date is for private school students only. Students currently enrolled in a county middle school will be registered at the middle school.

Recycling Corner

Newspapers are collected weekly with the curbside program, even if it's raining. Place newspapers in brown paper bags or tie them with string. No loose newspapers or papers in plastic bags will be accepted. Why? The newspapers will blow around and litter the City if loose, and plastic bags are completely incompatible with newspaper for recycling! For more information or if you need a new yellow recycling container, call the Recycling Coordinator at 474-8308.

Afro-Cuban Rhythms For Gala Weekend

by Betty Allen

On Saturday evening, June 3, at the Greenbelt Pool, the exciting sounds of the Sam Turner Ensemble will lend an international flavor to the 1995 Greenbelt Day festivities. The Greenbelt Arts Center and the Greenbelt Recreation Department will present Turner, a professional percussionist, who has performed with the Lionel Hampton Jazz Band, Olitunji Drummers and Dancers, the Alvin Ailey Dancers, and others. Joining Turner for the evening will be vocalist, Imani, whose unique blend of jazz and traditional African music is influenced by the music of John Coltrane, Wayne Shorter, and others. She gives the historical roots of traditional African and ethnic music and engages the audience in singing parts of children's tunes rooted in Ghana's traditions.

In addition to performing, Turner and Imani will present some members of Greenbelt Elementary School music classes, who have participated in their workshops. Four workshops precede the concert - The first three at the school and the final one a dress rehearsal at the Arts Center. The program offers an opportunity to hear some top quality jazz at no cost and to share what some of the young people of Greenbelt have already been fortunate enough to enjoy.

How fortunate that we have such a magnificent Spring--the trees are full and rich in color, the grass got a strong start, and the air is cool and crisp. A perfect time to come out to the Golden Age Club meetings. The speaker from the Smile Herb Shop, on May 17, piqued the interest of members to learn to use herbs to improve health and environment.

At our meeting on May 31, the speaker will be Karen Haseley's father, Ed who heads up a program called "creative grand-parenting." Since Greenbelters seem to be creative by nature, this should prove an interesting meeting.

Enjoy Memorial Day weekend, and remember our plans for a flea market on June 3-- for Greenbelt Day weekend celebration. Call Betty Maher, to volunteer to help.

GHI Voters Select Board Members With Experience; Double Signatures

by Mary Moien

Greenbelt Homes Inc (GHI) held its 45th Annual Meeting on May 21 with Carole Levin, Board President, presiding. The meeting was held in two parts - annual reports, questions, old and new business on Sunday with a recess until late Monday to allow for voting for seats on the board of directors and for the full audit committee. This year a slate of 11 vied for five seats on the board. Elected were Bill Phelan, Keith Jahoda, Ray Stevens, Nat Shinderman, and Betty Deitch. Phelan was an incumbent. Jahoda, Shinderman, and Deitch have all been on the board in the past. Only three candidates ran for the Audit Committee and were thus elected. They are John Taylor, Chuck Hess, and Alan Freas.

Presentations

The first order of business at the meeting is the presentation of annual reports. Since the reports had been distributed to all homes prior to the meeting, Levin indicated that they would not be read. However, she and General Manager Gretchen Overdurff had a few additional comments. Levin discussed the fee for service program which had been brought up at the candidates night. The current board has approved its continuation for a 12 month period on a not-for-profit basis. Levin also commented on yard standards. Several committees have been working on new standards and they will be distributed to all homes in the near future. Of prime importance is that, in the past, only the worst 15 percent of homes were cited during annual inspections. Beginning this summer, all homes with violations will be cited. GHI will try to work with the elderly, infirm, and those on a limited income if they have yard citations to try to bring the yards up to standards.

Overdurff told members that to preserve the cooperative requires changes. For all members there are responsibilities as well as benefits, she said. GHI employees are being asked to make a commitment to cost savings, quality work, serving members, etc. It will take time for change to happen. She reiterated that members will be getting a detailed bulletin on the new yard standards. Members can start now to look around for weeds, rusty sheds, etc. Overdurff also indicated that GHI is working with AETNA Insurance, the insurance carrier for the cooperative, to try to offer a discounted homeowner's policy. More information will be in the next GHI newsletter. Also, GHI volunteers will be going door-to-door this summer with new batteries for smoke detectors. If enough volunteers are available, they will try to help with other work for those who can not do the work themselves. She asks GHI members to call if they can volunteer.

Questions

There were questions from the members on the treasurer's report, environmental issues that impact on borrowing ability; and on lawsuits. The question from Mat Amburg on the treasurer's report concerned increased losses in spite of increased equity. The response was complex and difficult to understand. There was a question from another member on an environmental report on the cooperative and why it had been buried for almost two years. It came to light when Overdurff took over. Some board members indicated they had been unaware of its existence. Member Ben Elkins commented that this is the first annual report in decades to give a true view of the corporation. Usually what news was heard, he commented, came through the Greenbelt News Review and not through management.

Awards

Several awards were presented. Roger Bonafacio, GHI maintenance department, was selected as GHI Employee of the Year by the Board of Directors. Keith Jahoda was selected by the Audit Committee as Committee Person of the year for his work with the Woodland Committee. Wayne Williams and John O'Boyle were also recognized for their years of service to the board.

N&E Committee Election

There was voting at the meeting to fill five positions on the Nominations and Elections Committee. At the beginning of the meeting, there were three candidates--Charles Braun, Julia Eichhorst, and Andrew Levin. Two additional nominations were from the floor - Charlene Lagerwerff and

Judy Goldstein. After these two nominations were received, nominations were quickly closed. All five were elected.

Issues

The only item to be voted on at the meeting was a change to the bylaws to increase the number of members needed to call a special membership meeting. This proposal passed and the number of members needed will be raised from 50 to 100 members.

Because of members on the Nominations and Elections Committee becoming candidates for other offices, Bob Buzzanco proposed a bylaw change to require N&E members to resign at least 30 days before an election. However, unannounced bylaw changes cannot be voted on at annual meetings, so this was ruled out of order. Buzzanco later recommended that the N&E Committee adopt it as a policy statement.

Help for Art Center

The International Center for Artistic Development in Columbia, MD, would like volunteer help to assist with public relations and fundraising. The Center sponsors international artistic exchange programs and their exhibits at Prince Georges County area sites.

Kids Karnival Kudos

On Sunday, May 21, several Greenbelt children held a "Kids Karnival" to raise money for the Ronald McDonald House in Washington, DC. The Ronald McDonald House is a place where very sick children and their families can stay while they are in the area receiving treatment from a local hospital.

The children held several meetings to plan and organize the carnival. Everyone had special responsibilities for preparing game, getting prize and food donations, and publicity. Some of the games at the carnival were: Bingo, lollipop pull, beanbag toss, splash out, cake walk, and face painting.

The Greenbelters who raised $370 at their "Kids Karnival" are: Ari, Jesse, and Dina Goldberg-Strassler; Karen and Jessica Mealey; Megan Gregory; Matt and Andrew McLaughlin; Dena Kohn; Luke and Alex Mihalovic; Cara, Julia, and Nathaniel Snyder; Robin Brooks; Lauren and Katie Schreiber; Rachel Isaacs; Meghan Barnes; and Kevin Skolnik.

Everyone had a wonderful time!

BUDGET APPROVED

from the original budget estimate. On the plus side, state grants for police increased nearly $20,000 and two county grants will provide $49,000. Council had earlier directed Hobbs to eliminate a proposed $5,000 Labor Day Festival Fee.

Pool users will also see an increase in daily admission and season pass rates at the city pools and fitness center. This was proposed by Hobbs and accepted by council.

Refuse Fees

The loss of $99,000 of the landfill disposal rebate (cut by the county in response to a large deficit in the landfill budget), put the city's refuse collection budget out of balance. Although the individual city accounts are generally not required to balance, certain programs such as community development, refuse collection and recreation department classes are generally expected to be self-supporting. The refuse account is further complicated by the fact that it covers both refuse collection, which not all citizens subscribe to, and operation of the city's drop-off re-cycling center, which is also used by non-residents, tures than revenues to the budget proposed by Hobbs, and it was time for council to decide both how to fund these additional expenditures and whether to raise taxes as much as Hobbs proposed. Normally, at this stage in the worksession, the council members go back and re-examine the expenditures they were adding to try to reduce the need for a tax increase. This year, however, council obviously felt strongly that these expenditures were needed, as no one suggested re-examining or removing any of them. The only change made was a trade negotiation with Police chief James Craze that the bicycle officer would get a used police car, instead of a new one, freeing up sufficient funds to buy three more bikes and to hire an office assistant.

Hobbs has proposed a four cent increase in the property tax, plus transfer of $96,800 from the city's undesignated reserves. Mayor Antoinette Bram pushed to cut this hike at least in half. She suggested a larger transfer from reserves to cover the difference. None of the other councilmembers supported such a large transfer.

"We can't play games" Councilmember Judith Davis argued. Council must let citizens know what it costs to operate the facilities they enjoy. White, with assistance from McLaughlin, pointed out that a four cent tax increase would cost the owners of a $100,000 house just $16 per year. Bram countered that city taxes are not the only increased faced by residents. The county council had now voted to cancel an increase in the municipal tax differential, which would have cut residents' county property taxes by eight cents. They also will have to pay the new $50 fee for the county landfill, and the new recycling fee. A more gradual tax increase is easier for residents to bear, she said.

Roberts noted that residents will have to pay for the facilities sooner or later. On the first poll, council deadlocked with Davis and White supporting the full four cent hike, Bram and Roberts favoring a two cent raise and Putens in the middle with three cents.

Roberts broke the tension a little by reminding the mayor, who was vowing not to vote for a budget with a three or four cent increase, that "last year I talked about not voting for the budget and you gave me hell, Toni!" Shortly afterwards, council compromised on a three cent hike in the city tax rate.

The mayor did score one victory. At the beginning of the meeting, she sternly told all assembled, "This is not going to be a one o'clock in the morning meeting." She kept her word as council wrapped up its work by 11:30, relatively early for a final budget worksession.

More heat than light?

Discussion at the worksession at times was heated and some issues were deferred. The most contentious involved the public works budget. During the weeks of budget worksessions, Hobbs suggested moving the public works office assistant, who officially spends half her time on matters related to the Greenbelt Connection, to the community center. The loss of office help at public works was to be partially offset by Recycling Advisory Committee members Elizabeth Cologer (L) and Darlene Walter (R) staff an information table and answer recycling questions at the Greenbelt Giant. The Recycling Advisory Committee will be "touring" area supermarkets to help educate residents about how best to recycle. For more information or to join any of the city's advisory committees, call 474-8000.

Adopted Budget - FY96

as well as residents who are not served by the city's refuse service.

Hobbs estimated that a two dollar monthly increase in city refuse collection fees would be required to balance this account. Councilmember Judith Davis, supported by Mayor Antoinette Bram and Councilmember Rodney Roberts, proposed that council both raise fees by one dollar and carry through with plans to study the city's refuse and recycling operations in more detail over the summer. Councilmember Edward Putens opposed the increase (Councilmember Thomas White had not yet arrived.)

Bottom Line

By the end of the evening, council had added $14,400 more in expendi-

White argued that the budget should not be balanced with reserves. Approving this level of expenditures, he said, locks the city into that level for the next year. Putens agreed that the transfer from reserves should not be increased by too much. However, he felt that the full four cent increase would not be necessary. We may get some "surprises," he suggested, with some revenues coming in higher than estimated.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts worried that if "we strip away the reserves..." Bram heatedly countered that the city's reserves had actually increased over the last two years and that ample reserves would remain even after the transfer she increasing the hours of two other office workers.

Public Works Director Carl Hirsch took strong exception to this proposal. He argued that his department could not work effectively without adequate office support. Given the delayed opening of the center, the decision was deferred and the position left in the public works department, at least for the time being.

Also deferred until more information and analysis is available was the question of whether the city is spending more on contracting for electrical and other work than it would spend to hire a skilled person.

Capital Budget

The city has obtained some additional capital improvement funds. A state bond grant provided $400,000 for the community center and open space funds added $370,000. Aside from agreeing that the deficit in the community center account would be eliminated by a transfer from the capital projects fund and increasing the land acquisition allocation by $62,700, council made no revisions to the capital budget proposed by Hobbs. A worksession is planned later this year for more detailed discussion of the capital improvement program. In the interim, the city will continue with the projects already underway.

Tricentennial

that construction of more office buildings will encroach on its large contribution to greenspace in the region, few citizens here may have had personal contact with this internationally renowned institution, virtually in Greenbelt's back yard. All that can change on January 25, 1996, when BARC will host an opening reception at the library, the highrisebrownstructurebetweenRhode Island Avenue and U.S. 1.

During the summer of 1996 the University of Maryland plans a creative and performing arts festival, and the county's own annual winter Festival of Lights at Watkins Regional Park, beginning next November, will highlight the county's history. Students in high school industrial arts programs are already beginning work for this project. Tricentennial welcome signs on major roads and at the borders of each community will remind visitors that 1996 is an important year.

Commemorative Activities

How about a historic train excursion the Tricentennial Express? A project involving the Maryland Department of Transportation, the Department of Housing and Community Development, the Department of Economic and Employment Development, CSX and the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (MNCPPC), such a trip could take one to historic locations and to special Tricentennial events.

Or how about a re-enactment of the Battle of Bladensburg to remind people of how the War of 1812 impacted on this area? (The battle actually took place 1814.) That brings us to the role of Commodore Joshua Barney, one of whose ships from the Chesapeake Bay Flotilla will be constructed in replica and displayed at the Bladensburg Waterfront Park.

Perhaps Queen Margaret of Denmark, a descendant from the family of Prince George, will be here to help celebrate—if a letter recently sent to her receives a favorable response.

Traveling troupes of reenactors, a touring children's play, a gala sponsored by former county executive Winfield Kelly and Mrs. Kelly and by Mr. and Mrs. Ted Howard, planned for the founding day, April 23 -- all these are in the works.

Hospital Needs Help

Laurel Regional Hospital will hold a Volunteer Orientation for adults and VolunTEENS (Teenagers 14 and up) on Saturday, June 3, 1 to 5 p.m. Adults are needed as escorts in the new areas of the hospital. VolunTEENS serve as runners, escorts, messengers and patient visitors.

No registration is required. For information call Carolyn Carchedi, Director of Volunteer Services, at (301) 497-7950.

Other possibilities include a mass choir and a yearlong set of workshops and concerts; a passport to history (a booklet describing 18 publicly accessible sites), to be stamped and an award given to someone visiting all 18; and traveling exhibits on Native Americans cultural diversity in the county, and "Famous Firsts and Interesting Facts."

The Tricentennial will also be featured on the cover of the Prince Georges County phone book white pages. And perhaps there will even be a special brewing of Tricentennial Ale.

Festival Notes

Orientation

An orientation meeting for girls who are interested in the Miss Greenbelt Pageant will be held on Tuesday, May 30, at 7:30 p.m. at the Aquatic and Fitness Center. The pageant is open to all girls, ages 14-19, who live, work or go to school in Greenbelt. The orientation meeting will be an opportunity to learn about the pageant's scholarship program, the activities in the community that will take place over the summer, and all the opportunities to learn new skills and meet new friends.

The orientation meeting for the Little and Junior Miss Pageants will be Thursday, June 1, at 7:30 p.m., also at the Greenbelt Aquatic Center. The Little Miss Pageant is for girls 7 to 10 and the Junior Miss Pageant is open to girls who are 11 to 13.

Back Care Seminar

Eight out of every ten people will suffer from back pain at some time in their lives. For the lucky ones, relief is accomplished by a period of rest. Washington Adventist Hospital will conduct a free back care seminar on Wednesday, May 31 from 7-8:30 p.m. Hospital professionals will cover the anatomy of the back, causes of back pain, ways to prevent back injuries, and knowing when to seek professional help. For more information, or to register, call 1-800-542-5096.

Parents and family are welcome to attend these meetings and they are open to all who want to sign up or simply explore the option. Those planning to attend should call Natasha Chavrid-Jewell, pageant coordinator, at 352-8665.

This year will be a special one for the Miss Greenbelt Pageant which celebrates its 40th anniversary. The search continues for former Miss Greenbelt winners and pageant directors.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

arrangement worked out, the department was to borrow the money and the county was to repay the department, with 6% interest, over a five-year period. However, the county held back its first-year payment until threatened by lawsuits, and then the amount paid fell short by 8 1/2% of the amount needed. Although funding is provided for 1996, future funding is uncertain.

Another expense down the road is the rehabilitation of Engine 351, the department's other pumper truck. Estimated to cost $160,000 to $200,000, the work will need to be done in three to six years. Since the city banned casino gambling, it has contributed the equivalent of a one cent yield on the property tax rate toward the purchase of equipment. This year, city Manager Daniel Hobbs, also faced with budget constraints resulting from decreased property assessments, proposed eliminating this contribution. The city council, however, has said it intends to continue the annual funding, estimated to be $52,900.

Besides providing volunteers at fire and rescue incidents at no labor cost to county residents, the Greenbelt Department has used its own funds, obtained through fundraising, to buy a host of departmental equipment. These purchases include two small vehicles, special tools, air masks, office equipment, and furniture for the bunk rooms and the banquet hall.

Membership

The department has a membership roster of about 80. Of these, 35 to 40 ride fire and rescue apparatus. Twenty ride regularly, mostly the younger members, some of whom live at the fire station. The volunteers are required to take 110 hours of training before becoming eligible to respond to fires. Another 120 hours of training is required to be an emergency medical technician (EMT). It takes 18 months of training to become both an EMT and a firefighter I, according to Greenbelt Fire Chief Dick Wynkoop. On top of that, new recruits have to undergo an extensive background investigation that takes up even more time.

"We can always use more volunteers," Wynkoop says, "but we are not down to a hurting position. We're in the process of training two of our younger personnel to drive apparatus. Our biggest problem is to get the apparatus on the streets. We're pretty good on ambulance personnel. It's harder to drive a truck."

The chief notes that the department is in the process of training all its active members to be EMT's. "We have about 25 in service right now."

The chief encourages young people to become volunteers. "We welcome any new recruits. Come to the station and ask for anyone on the membership committee." There is a Junior Associate program for persons age 13 to 15. Juniors, age 16 to 18, can ride the trucks. The department will take up to 10 Junior Associates and ten Juniors at one time.

"Being a junior volunteer helps young people to do things on their own," says the chief. "They get a little structure to their life. It helps them to learn what life's about away from home." The chief notes that young volunteers have to accept responsibility and discipline. If their behavior is not acceptable, they can be suspended. Both Wynkoop and Remenick became junior volunteers with the department and have been here ever since.

First Due

The department is first due in central Greenbelt and in Greenbelt East north of Ora Gen Drive. It responds to all fire and accident calls, manpower permitting, with a pumper truck and an ambulance. It is an engine company. For house fires, the county will dispatch two engines and a rescue squad. Other engine companies serving Greenbelt are Branchville and West Lanham Hills #2. For larger building fires (apartments and offices--box alarms) the county will dispatch three engine companies, two truck companies, and a rescue squad. Truck companies have aerial ladder trucks. Berwyn Heights, Beltsville, Glenn Dale and College Park are so equipped and may respond to Greenbelt. Other fire companies that may respond in Greenbelt are Riverdale Heights, West Lanham #1, and Laurel.

A Greenbelter in Rwanda: Servants, 24-Hour Guards

by Brandy Siegel McNeill

First in a series.

I arrived in Rwanda at 6 a.m., after traveling for 18 hours, and started work at 3 p.m. that same day. I soon learned I had to be very specific when requesting anything in the UN. For example I requested a computer with Word Perfect. I got the computer faster than in any job I have ever had. Unfortunately I didn't specify what language I wanted the Word Perfect in and they loaded it in Portuguese!

I am sitting on my bed with a laptop sitting on a pillow on my lap (where else should a lap top be?).

At this moment, it is hard to believe that I'm in a wartorn country. But, today is the one-year anniversary of the start of the war. The UN told all of us to stay home. We brought home enough food and water for a week, our passports, and $3,000 bribe money in the event the war breaks out again.

The view from my bedroom window is postcard perfect! Rwanda is called the land of a thousand hills. It rains almost every day, but usually for only 15 minutes. Everything is very green and lush. The weather is perfect almost all the time. It is about 60 degrees in the morning and the evenings. During the day it is usually in the 80's. There is no humidity, so it is very comfortable. Because we are so close to the equator, the sun is very intense, and I've gotten a tan simply by teaching a 45-minute aqua aerobics class twice a week.

From a distance, Rwanda looks like a paradise. At close range however, it is shocking. The worst slum in D.C. is in better condition. Most of the buildings do not have windows, electricity, or running water. Almost every building was hit by shells and machine-gun fire. Many of the Rwandese people live in mud huts, yet a sense of humor prevails. I saw a tee shirt that read "Hard Rock Cafe: Closed for Renovations- Kigali, Rwanda."

Our living situation is luxurious by comparison. We have a two bedroom duplex, newly renovated (sort of), new furniture, gas stove and mini refrigerator, a full-time maid, and two guards, 24 hours a day. The maid does all our laundry by hand, iron everything including our underwear, makes the beds, washes the dishes, and washes the concrete floor with a rag everyday. Her pay is $38 USD a week, and since we share her with another couple, our cost is $19 a week.

Our house is located in an abandoned steel factory. The factory was damaged beyond repair during the war. One of the UN engineers convinced the owner to fix up one of the duplexes that used to be factory employee housing. Paul and I, the engineer, and his fiancée moved in as an experiment. I guess the experiment worked because the owner is now renovating three more houses. It will be nice to have neighbors because we are very isolated. And isolation is dangerous in a country still teetering on a continuation of a centuries old war. Also, when all five units are rented, we plan to share the cost of installing a

A Greenbelter Writes Home From Rwanda

The News Review presents the first in a series of first-person reports from Kigali, Rwanda, by Greenbelt's Brandy Siegel McNeill. Her letters reveal aspects of life in the war-torn city that don't make the evening news: military dances, free-for-all traffic, and round-the-clock bodyguards.

Brandy is a consultant providing counselling and fitness programs for the more than 400 mission employees in Kigali, describing this as something she's always wanted to do: "stress management in a corporate setting!" Her husband, Paul S. McNeill, Jr., is the Chief Financial Officer for the UN Peacekeeping Force in Kigali.

The daughter of Hal and Valerie Siegel, Brandy grew up in Greenbelt, graduated from Parkdale High and Towson State College, and received a Masters degree in exercise physiology from Adelphi University. She has also done graduate work in counselling.

In November, 1994, she joined her husband in Segreb, Croatia, for four months. From there the couple went to Rwanda.

generator and satellite dish (although my withdrawal symptoms from ER, Seinfeld and Sisters have almost subsided!) There is an rumor that the factory and office will be made a UN compound soon. If that happens, we will then have 24 hour military guards and running water. I've learned that electricity and running water are gifts to be thankful for.

City Notes

The Department of Public Works prepared Greenbelt's recreation area this week. All baseball fields in Greenbelt and the soccer fields of Greenbelt Middle School and Schrom Hills Park were lined.

The bicycle lanes along Crescent Road now have painted lines and signage, and various parks have new chips under their playground equipment. A new basketball court has been put in at McDonald Field.

Greenbelt CARES

Teresa Smithson and Chris Foland, guidance counselor at Greenbelt Middle School, held the last meeting of their Pre-Teen Support Group on Monday, May 15. The group enjoyed pizza and a discussion of self esteem. Some members chose to share their musical talents, and sang for the group closing.

Judye Hering participated in the Prince Georges County Volunteer Fair on Wednesday, May 17 at the USAir Arena in Landover. The purpose of the Fair was to educate the citizens of the County and the National Capital Area of the various volunteer opportunities available. Volunteers are in great need as program budgets continue to be cut.

Hering provided an overview of Greenbelt CARES GED course to directors of Educational Planning in administration at Prince Georges County Board meeting on Thursday, May 18. Covered in detail were the structure of the CARES program and the particular curriculum.

Take Refuge

What are those green things under the bird boxes? Why was Lake Allen drained last fall? Come find out the answers to those questions on Saturday, May 27 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Patuxent Environmental Science Center North Tract, Bald Eagle Drive, Laurel. Spend the morning stopping at different sites to observe and learn about wildlife management and wildlife strategies used at Patuxent.

Bring a bike (mountain or cross-bike, preferably - the route includes gravel road), water, snack, sunscreen and binoculars for wildlife viewing (optional). For information, directions, or to register, please call 410-674-3304. Advance registration is required.

Council Awards a Contract To Design Center Renovation

by Diane Oberg

At its May 8 regular meeting, the Greenbelt City Council awarded a contract for design work for up-grading Roosevelt Center, offered a belated happy 80th birthday to long-time Greenbelter Albert Herling, and received various communications and requests.

Roosevelt Center

Bradley-Papp Landscape Architecture, Inc. was awarded the contract for design services for the final stage of the Roosevelt Center Mall renovation. The city has received a $7,500 state grant towards this work the cost of which is not to exceed $15,000.

The firm is headed by Greenbelt resident Sharon Bradley-Papp. (The cover to her bid proposal featured a picture of her father as a young boy in front of the Mother and Child statue.)

According to Director of Planning and Community Development Celia Wilson, the work entails designing a concept plan for upgrading and improving the remaining areas of Roosevelt Center. This area runs between the parking lot near the post office to Centerway and between the east and west parking lots. Bradley-Papp is to develop plans for the configuration and use of the space.

Wilson said the architect has been provided with information from the charette and other historical information, and is doing additional research to help her develop a full perspective of the Center from 1937 to the present.

As in the past work, council will have to approve the plans developed by Bradley-Papp before the actual improvements are put up for bid.

Al Herling

Mayor Antoinette Bram presented a proclamation to Albert Herling in honor of his 80th birthday, which he celebrated on February 28. The proclamation noted Herling's long service on a variety of city boards and committees and his support for and participation in the arts.

Herling spoke briefly, noting the extended celebration of his birthday. He said the city has done much for him and his family, and that he has always felt an obligation to do something in return. He reminded those in attendance of his favorite general, the only one mentioned in the preamble of the constitution--General Welfare.

Herling praised the people of Greenbelt who, he said, always come together. At his concerts, the vibes from the audience "force me to do better than I can."

Truck Repairs

Council unanimously approved, under suspension of the rules, purchase of an $8,150 dump truck body. The existing body failed in a frightening manner in late March when it "fell uncontrollably" towards a work crew on Crescent road. At the time two tons of hot asphalt were in the truck. Director of Public Works Carl Hirsch reported that had the falling body not struck the cab, one of the crew members likely would have been severely or fatally injured. The city's chief mechanic has determined that the truck cannot be repaired adequately to be considered safe.

communications

The New Deal Steering Committee petitioned council to file for a waiver from parking and loading standards to permit the committee to operate a coffee house/cafe in Roosevelt Center. Council will consider the request at its May 22 meeting.

The Arts Advisory Committee sent communications to council asking council to reconsider the decision to move the Department of Planning and Community Development to the Community Center, and to ensure that $400,000 in state funds be used solely to replace the windows in the community center not to offset other expenses. Both requests were accepted without discussion under the consent agenda.

Other Actions

Bram presented a proclamation declaring May 18 "Greenbelt Bike to Work Day."

Council approved the proposal of the Advisory Committee on Education to establish an award program to honor Greenbelt students for their contributions to their school or to Greenbelt.

Council also referred the project requests of the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition to the Greenbelt Bicycle Task Force for review.

Host Families Needed

Host families are being sought for high school students from Western and Eastern Europe, Asia, South America, Australia, and the former Soviet Union for the 1995-1996 school year. This exchange program is sponsored by the American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE). AISE is a nationwide non-profit organization and teaches young people to accept other cultures.

AISE's international students, ages 15 through 18, will arrive in the United States in August, attend a local high school, and return to their native countries in June 1996. They are fluent in English, and possess their own medical insurance and spending money. For further information including student profiles, call 1-800-SIBLING today.

American Intercultural Student Exchange is a non-profit tax exempt organization dedicated to fostering international understanding.

Volunteers Needed

Watkins Nature Center, located in Watkins Regional park, in Upper Marlboro, is seeking volunteers to work during the spring and summer months.

Adults, especially senior citizens are needed to work as Exhibit Hall Docents--Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Training will be held on Thursday, June 8 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

For more information call (301) 249-6202; TTY (301) 699-2544.

We have all been lucky this past couple of months. We actually have had a spring! Yes, comfortable, cool and not a lot of wear & tear on our automobiles.

But don't let this bring you into a lull. This type of condition is just waiting to get you! The first bash of hot weather will certainly do your vehicle harm because you were not prepared for it! The last couple of years we have seen radiators become clogged very early due to the cooling tubes that are restricted due to residue & contaminants from antifreeze & pieces of deteriorating radiator hoses. This will block the tubes of the radiator and limit the cooling efficiency. With modern engines it's of utmost importance to keep them cool. If you don't you cut down the longevity and reliability.

The main problem is the recommended service interval of all rubber cooling hoses is 4 years maximum according to Automobile Engine Rebuilders Association, and they don't even manufacture cooling hoses. They just rebuild engines. They see the physical damage & wear that occurs to engines that have suffered from heat related conditions.

Till next time, think Preventive Maintenance !!
